

Editorial

We have published the first issue of the third volume of our journal named Journal of Environmental Science and Engineering Technology. We continue to contribute to scientific world at academic level in either announcing the contributions of developing engineering technologies or raising sustainable environmental awareness. As seen on the title of our journal, its perspective comprises the subjects that have a large share in scientific world. We are ready to declare the studies, experiments or theoretical works of other scientists. We will be happy to publish the valuable studies of each scientist in our journal.
